LINCOLN'S ADVICE TO JOHN.

Abraham Lincoln knew hardships Once in his poverty days he tried to seep a store. He bought it with note and sold on credit, and very soon th His creditors seized his horse, saddle and bridle and sold them under a sher iff's execution, friend brought them | and Lincoln paid back every penny. He earned finance from hard experience.

When he made money he helped his amily. One member was John rother John was the kind of farme the wanted always to be selling end moving. Abraham had helped him but the time came when the strong word had to be spoken, and it has been preserved in a letter full of common ense. In this letter Abraham writes to lohn:

"I learn that you are anxious to sel he land where you live and move to Missouri. I cannot but think such a no on is utterly foolish. What can lo in Missouri better than here? Is th and any richer? Can you there, any nore than here, raise corn and when and outs without work? If you intemgo to work; there is no better plac than right where you are, if you do not intend to go to work, you cannot tel along anywhere. Somerming mid rawling from place to place can do no good. You have raised no crop this ear, and what you really want is to sell the land, get the money and spend Part with the land you have, and my life upon it, you will never after wn a spot big enough to bury you in

There are always many Johns in farming. They want to sell out, they want to move. In reality they want the money to spend it, and never after do they own a spot big enough for a grave Abraham's final fling at John was: "Go to work is the only cure for your case. It is the cure for the other Johns. Country Gentleman has made a wonderful record financial ly this year, and one that stamps Lawrence county as the best place on earth to grow the best apples, and at profits almost beyond expectation. Mr. Wilgus has a thirty acre farm, twelve acres which are planted in an apple orchard. This year the yield was phenominally large and here are the results. Aren't they profitable in a high degree?

C. H. Wilgus, who has an orehard

There are 900 apple trees on these 12 acres, and they produce this year 3761 barrels of deliciously flavored ap-ples that were sold to Coach & Co. for leven thousand dollars, that firm tak ng the whole crop. The NEWS has always urged our people to raise fruits, and this cash record of a 12acre apple orchard in prolific Lawrence county, where the most delicious and richest colored apples grow, speaks in thunder tones: Grow Apples in Law-rence County." Of course Mr. Wilgus sufficiented the other 18 acres of land entained in his thirty acre form. The NEWS takes off its hat to C. H. Wil-gus, the J. P. It eemed to make them sick, and Mr Breeck was called. That evening while giving them medicine the calf made rush for the bank of the river and umped over. Supposing it had killed itself, they waited until light to look it up. The next day they could not find it or any signs of what had become of it. The next evening while doctoring the cow, the cow got loose and rushed over the cliff. They took a lantern and went to see if it was killed, and got there just in time to see it make for the river and drown. It seemed a clear case of suicide.-Carrollton Democrat.
